

A Song To A Little Boy

Little boy, with so much living to
How much truth should I pass on to you?

Shall I tell you of my fears
That increase with passing years?
Shall I talk about the love that disappears?
Should I talk about the pain
That I've lived my life in vain?
Shall I tell you of the dreams that end in tears?

Shall I talk about the day
When my childhood passed away
Shall I tell you of the many times I strayed?
Should I talk about the time
That I almost lost my mind?
Shall I talk about the dues that I have paid?

Little boy, with so much living to do
How much truth should I pass on to you?

I will tell you of the joy
Just to know a little boy
I will tell you of the value of a friend
And no matter what you give,
To be free is all there is.
And I'll tell of a love that never ends.

James Kavanaugh