

If we wish to foster growth in children of curiosity, wonder, adventure, enthusiasm and joy as well as courage to face dangers and difficulties, then we must seriously question the extent to which modern life requires greater and greater degrees of repressive control.

Matthew J. Trippe, 1966