

Mental health and good education are to be valued because they represent the rediscovery of humanism in a technologically organized society where the goals of society have been lost or forgotten and the means have become the goals.

Matthew J. Trippe, 1966